

Revitalisation of Land Administration Organisations: The Land Administration Project in Ghana as a Case Study

Anthony Nuvor, Ghana

Key words: Capacity building, Land management.

SUMMARY

Land is one of the very vital resources that supports development of communities and countries as a whole. Economies with prudent Land Administration and management procedures have achieved great success that have positively affected the lifestyles of its citizens. Ghana has just began the Land Administration Project (LAP) and Component One of the this projects is concerned with the Institutional Strengthening (REVITALISATION) of the various Land Sector Agencies (LSA's). There are several of these agencies separately located with some amount of duplication of functions. Under the LAP (which is on-going), these agencies are being restructured (in terms of human and physical resources), their functions re-defined all with the aim of providing efficient land delivery services to all stake holders
